

ABSTRACT

The level of a histamine-releasing factor (HRF) protein in a biological sample of a subject is measured and the HRF protein level is compared with that of a normal biological sample. A significantly higher HRF protein level compared with that of the normal biological sample is used as an indicator of a disease related to endometriosis or the degree of its risk.

BEST AVAILABLE COPY